increased productivity results, the contours of the path; any attempt to travel without the aid and counsel of those who are more experienced and knowledgeable is neither prudent nor pragmatic. Compared to humans, the lower animals require less nurturing before they are weaned and become independent. Humans, conversely, take a relatively long time to reach physical and mental maturity. Indeed, it is interesting that some animals can protect and fend for themselves in a matter of days after their birth, while the development of similar abilities in human beings requires years. The aid of a wise and understanding counselor can be of significant help during childhood and throughout adolescence, and parents usually play this role. However, research has shown that the presence of other influential adults during this period can be very useful. Millennial Workforce: Cracking the Code to Generation Y In Your Company - Javier Montes - 2017-02-02
If you look up “communication gap” in the dictionary, it may as well have a picture of a baby boomer trying to talk to a millennial. These younger workers born from 1980 to 2000 are the largest population in the United States, and they make up a huge portion of the workforce. But all too often, older workers view millennials as entitled or unmotivated. Javier Montes puts those notions to rest in this guide to leveraging the talents of millennials to achieve business objectives. By investing time and effort into millennials, he’s built multiple companies while learning new things along the way. After reading this book, you’ll be equipped to: improve the way you attract, manage, and retain millennials; use technology to make business processes more efficient; thrive in a world built around instant gratification; and reward younger workers with what they value most.

Do you feel that? It's the ground moving beneath you. A rapid cultural shift has occurred over the last decade, but it's not being addressed. For better or worse, the world of Mad Men is dead. In its place lives a world pulsing with a culturally diverse makeup of social models, relationships, businesses, and leaders. Consider the following projections: -China will soon be the number one English-speaking country in the world -The majority of the United States will soon be non-white -For every two men graduating from college, opened to the possibilities for better GPAs -85% all major buying decisions are made by women -The videogame industry is now bigger than professional baseball Now more than ever, leaders and companies must find ways to stay relevant in a world that is fundamentally different from the one being taught in textbooks. In The New World Marketplace experienced consultant and thought leader Farnaz Wallace breaks down these changes into three macro trends: 1. The shifting roles of women at home and at work 2. The new values and ideological power of youth culture 3. The growth and influence of multicultural consumers and societies These three trends-once considered small niches-are now major target markets, and businesses must communicate to them in order to stay relevant and prosperous. Identity, Trauma, Sensitive and Controversial Issues in History Education is a politically contested subject. It can be used to both promote xenophobia and to develop critical thinking, multiple perspectives, and tolerance. Accordingly, this book critically examines complex issues and constructivist approaches that make history relevant to students’ understanding of the modern world. As such, it has global appeal especially in North and South America, Canada, Europe and Asia. The book’s authors address the major challenges that History Education faces in an era of globalisation, digital revolution and international terror, nationalism and sectarian and religious conflict and warfare. Central to this volume are controversial issues, trauma, and questions of personal and national identity from a wide range of international settings and perspectives. The research in this book was undertaken by leading history educators from every continent. Their interdisciplinary research represents an important contribution to the teaching of social sciences, social psychology, civic education programmes, history and history education in schools, colleges and universities. The book offers new approaches to history educators at all levels. In addition, the chapters offer potential as required reading for students to both develop an international perspective and to compare and contrast their own situations with those that the book covers. Section I considers issues related to identity; how can history education promote social coherence in multicultural societies, in societies divided by sectarianism, or countries adapting to regime changes, whether Communist or Fascist, including, for example, South Africa, previously Communist countries of Eastern Europe, and previous dictatorships in South America and Western Europe. Second Time Foster Child - Toni Hoy - 2012-03-01
“Toni walks us through the experience of having foster
as part of his special needs mental illness . . . moving and heart-wrenching” (Marcia Stein, PHR, CA, author of Strained Relations). As an infant, Daniel entered the foster care system as a result of severe neglect, which manifested in violence and aggression later in his childhood after he was adopted by Jim and Toni Hoy. Desperate to get him into a residential treatment center and keep their other children safe, Jim and Toni were given two options by the state of Illinois: either keep him in a psychiatric hospital or be charged by the Department of Children and Family Services with child endangerment for failure to protect their other children. Mental health professionals recommended abandoning Daniel at the hospital after the state denied all viable sources of funding for his treatment. So Daniel re-entered the foster care system for no other reason than he was mentally ill. A year later, Daniel’s mother discovered that his treatment was covered by a funding source that he was awarded adoption. How could they get the state government to understand the federal law and re-gain custody of their son?
